SARANK ON DUTY

Paraskevopoulos Makes Charges.

Two More Damage Suits Against Yampa Smelter for Injuries.

One Plaintiff Complains That Man in Charge Was Unfitted for Duties by Drunkenness.

Another damage suit was filed against the Yampa Smelting company in the District court yesterday. George Paraskevopoulos is the plaintiff and he wants $5,000. He says that his arm was broken and he was laid up in the hospital for eight weeks. He claims that these injuries were caused by a drunken foreman at the smelter at Bingham.

The plaintiff says that the company employed a foreman who was totally unfitted for his position and duties. He was addicted to the use of liquor while on duty around the smelter. The complaint says that the boss was known to be nearly always drunk.

This foreman ordered the plaintiff to get on an elevator car which was used to transport ore about the smelter. The plaintiff at the time was new to the work and had never been in a smelter before. The foreman, being drunk, properly attached the car to the rope connecting with the engine. The car got loose and ran down the incline. It collided with a loaded car at the foot of the incline. As a result of all this the plaintiff sustained the injuries for which he claims $5,000 damages.

Lost Three Fingers.

Still another damage suit was filed against the Yampa Smelting company yesterday. It was that of Gest Triandos, for $10,000 damages. The plaintiff claims to have lost three fingers as a result of an accident in the company's smelter. He says that he suffered other injuries as well.

The plaintiff says in his complaint that he was ordered by the foreman of the smelter, one Nicholas Mills, to oil part of the machinery. It was the duty of the defendant, according to complaint, to keep this machinery revolving at a slow and steady rate while it was being oiled. Suddenly, he says, the machinery was set in motion at full speed. Triandos was thrown down off the iron plate on which he was standing. His hand was caught between the revolving plate and the scraper. As a result, he says that he had to have three fingers of that hand amputated.

HABEAS CORPUS HEARING.

Arguments Submitted and the Case Taken Under Advisement.

Hearing in the petition of Williams, King and Martell for a writ of habeas corpus was held before Judge Armstrong yesterday. The men are charged in the county jail on a charge of grand larceny. Their attorney, James F. Smith, contends that there was not enough evidence at the preliminary hearing to warrant their being held pending their trial before the District court.

The Sheriff's officers say that they have other charges against the men and that they are convicted of acquiring or stealing the horse mentioned in the charges now pending. The arguments were submitted to the court, Assistant County Attorney Job P. Lyon and C. S. Price are for the State. Judge Armstrong has taken the case under advisement.

CONSTABLE IS VINDICATED.

Woman Witness Acknowledges Having Testified Falsely.

Hyrum Nielson, constable of Holladay, was vindicated in Judge Ritchie's court yesterday. The jury in the case of Nielson, charged with grand larceny, returned a verdict for the defendant. The sensation of the trial yesterday was the admission of the woman witness that she had perjured herself in the City court.

The details of the case were reported in The Tribune on Tuesday. Nielson had thrown Larsen out of his dance hall on Christmas day. The evidence went to show that Larsen deserved to be thrown out of the dance hall for using profane language, misbehaving and acting in a disorderly manner.

In the first trial Mrs. Rasmussen testified on the stand that she had not heard Larsen using any profane language. Yesterday, under the cross-examination of Nielson's attorney, she admitted that she had heard him use profane language, and she admitted that her former testimony was false.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that more people take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities already present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectively cleans and improves the complexion. It whitens the teeth and cleans the mouth and throat. It also helps the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in a ready-made patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."
